THE NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Referring to the last report of the New York Life Insurance Company. Insurance says :-The feature which first attracts attention is the tremendous percentage of increase on being now $495.601.270. Of the new insurance written in 1889 more than one half represents solid gian to the company an increase of eighteen per cent. largest percentage so far reported by any of the great companies. Nothing can more indicatory of healthy growth than these annual growth of a tree. They take into account all loss payments, endowments, lapses, and pur standing by itself, is one that any company achieving it in the space of a quarter of a centary, by dint of push and energy, might well be ing their half century, whose total business since their organisation the New York Life solipsed last year.

Turning from these figures, which are so elequent of company prosperity, which point to more than four hundred and ninety-five millions of dollars yet to be distributed, let us note the present outflow of money as it represents what life insurance is to-day. During the twelve months of 1889 the New York Life said to its members and their heirs the sum of $13.121:120 Englishmen are sometimes heard to beset of the income of the Duke of Westminister which they declare to be a guinea a minute. But here we have one hundred and ten dollars a minute, pai during banking hours every day of the year, in cluding Sundays and holdidays. Not income but out-go. Over five millions of this enormous sum went to the heirs of dead men. How like a benediction it went into desolate homes none will ever know. It rescued many a woman from a life of hopeless struggle. It paid off mortgages. It kept unbroken the family circle. It made education and chance of getting on "in life possible to thousands. The agent who grows eloquent over what life insurance will do for the living as a means of invest ment, must not lose sight of what it does for the dead. There is in it a notency which en ables a man to make out of the uncertainties of his business life a completeness: a sure auccess This is a deep down, bed rock fact, to which the foregoing figures bear aloquent testimony. A very important feature of company prosperity is the forward stride in assets. Las crease of the year amounts to $11,573,414—total frontiers extended, and indeed only persuaded $105,052,600. The hundred million mark was passed by a bound exceeding five millions. And how about the wisdom of investments? Do the assets produce a reasonable rate of interest durto touchstone is in interest and rentals, and these shave their heads, and thus be enabled to exhibit produced, including interest accrued, no less a sum than $5,028,950

It is scarcely more than twenty-five years since the issuance of five thousand policies in a year by any life insurance company was looked but whether he remains permanently is not upon as a phenomenal success, and policies in those days averaged much smaller in amount than they do now. Last year the New York Life issued 39,499 policies, insuring the gross sum of more than $150,0 0,000. The gross premium income for the year represents the sum of $24,585,921. The total income falls but little short of thrity millions of dollars. The following figures represent the progress of the company in a single year : " Increase in interest Increase in benefits to policy holders -1,148,051,61 Increase in surplus for dividends... 1.716.849.01 Increase in premiums 3,458,930.35 Increase in total income 3.761.933.41 Increase in insurance written agent, and the policyholder ought to feel s thrill of satisfaction. It is a record achievement. Mr. Beers is bold to plan, and who is disposed to rest on his laurels. Under his skilful leadership, the company has come to that the company will wrest still greater victories out of the immediate future. It has a stalwart agency, composed of picked men, under thorough drill and discipline, with whom the getting of new husiness is no experiment. And success inof egents capable of writing new insurance to the amount of $150,000,000 in 1889, can do the same thing in 1890, with the addition of fifty millions

Failures, however, cannot be consid ered surprising when it is remembered how wide an extent of ocean surface necessarily escapes constant observation. Indeed, so, im portant and disturbing a factor is the Atlantie, for instance, that after deciding that the results obtained from the telegrams received from the other side of that ocean did not justify the cost, the Council have since come to the conolusion that even when copies are received gratuitously they do not repay time spent in their study. Meanwhile increased attention is being given to the collection of information from ships and the number of "excellent" logs appears to be steadily increasing. The currents of the Atlantic, Pacific, and Indian Oceans are also being thoroughly investigated and mapped. One point brought out by the inspection of the logs received is that the anti-cyclonic regions of the great oceans, characterised by calms and light variable winds, are practically avoided by navigators.-Manchester Guardian:

Custom may possibly, as in the case of the "lingering death. have introduced some modifications in practice but the facts of the prolonged captivity of an innocent child, with a view to future punishment. and the formal approval by the imperor of the legal sentence would still remain to testify to the barbarity of the Code :- "Yu Luh, Governor of Anhwei, memorialises as follows: In 1872 certain disturbances had broken out on the border of that province and of Houan. After the apprehension of the leader Li Liu the Government forces further effected the capture of this malefector's son. Li Mao-tze, at that time six years old. The child was handed over by the Governor of Houan to the district magistrate to be kept imprisoned till be should reach the proper age to be dealt with according to law. And the magistrate of the said district has now reported that the prisoner has reached the age of eleven, and acknowledges that he is the son of the insurgent leader. Li Liu; but owing to his tender years at the time he knew nothing of his father's treasonable designs. The law runs as follows:-" The children and grandchildren of rebols, if not themselves privy to the tressonable designs of their parants, shali be delivered into the hands the Imperial household to be emasculated, and shall be forwarded to Turkestan and given over as slaves to the soldiery. It beneath the age of ten they shall be contined in prison until they shall have reached the age of sleven, whereupon the sentence of the law shall be carried into effect.' As the prisoner in question has now reached the prescribed age, execuion of the sentence of the law must be proceedd with, and submission to this effect baving been made by the provincial judge, on application by the prefect, the Governor has approved the same and has communicated with the Board of Punishments in due form. He requests that instructions may be issued accordingly." The mperial rescript: "Led the Board of Punish ments take note." confirms the proposal, which throws a lurid light on the idea of visiting the sins of the fathers upon the children that finds frequent expression in Oriental polity. The idea of courses is to extirpate, root and pranch, a moxious brood: for parrioide and reballion are, as we have seen, classed together as the most horrible of crimes. But what is persaps most carious is the illustration afforded of be slow evolution of moral perceptions in the human mind: for this sentence is evidently, from the language used, considered a merciful reduction of the death penalty to, which the victim would have been liable had he been privy to his father's treasonable designs. he whole incident affords, also, a curious illustration of the methodical formality of Chinese procedure. Jehu's extermination of the house of ()mri was simple butchery compared to the orderly and legal extinction of the family of Li

We are concerned, however, with the theor and practice of indicial torture rather than with he maxims and out-of-the-way sentences of Chinese law. It would be as great a mistake to suppose that scenes of crucky are being daily enacted throughout the length and breadth of Chins, as it would be to take the Chinese literati at their own valuation as possessing laws of paternal leniency. The truth no doubt lies beween these two extremes. For just as ito quote Mr. Giles' appropriate simile) "people going up a mon tain complain to those they meet coming down of the bitter cold, and are assured by the latter that the temperature is really pleasant;" so certain Chinese custom savour to us of a cruelty long since disused in Europe, "while the Chinese enthusiast proudly compares the practice of the present dynasty with the atrocities of les civilised ges." And there are not wanting indications that opinion is tending generally however shorty-to discountenance and discourage the more cruel proceedings. The sa-called "lingering death, for instance, which need to mean chopping off one limb after another and tearing out the heart, before eventual de-Increase in insurance in force 75.715.465.00 capitation, has been reduced at least to the With such a splendid showing, the office, the nfliction of a series of gashes representing these mutilations, followed by a speedier both in this case and in that of ordinary decapitation, to be usually half stupefied with prium before undergoing the penalty. Until Mr. Cowles was 25 years of age, be supposed that all be heard and read about the sough of birds was postical fation, minds to his ears they had always been as mute as fishes. Then a distinguished artist hearing of this droll delusion, sought Mr. Cowles out, and made the discovery that he could not hear the notes of a piace or organ above the sixth octave, or even the shrillest or most vibrant notes of a fife or violin. Put in a room with 20 canaries, Mr. Cowles could not hear the dightest sound even when they were singing at their shrillest, and he placed his ear close to the cage: All the sibilare sounds in human speech escaped him likewise, and as a result be never produced them in his own talk Strange to say in all other respects his bearing was more than ordinarily souts.
